Alma, Amulek and the Zoramites

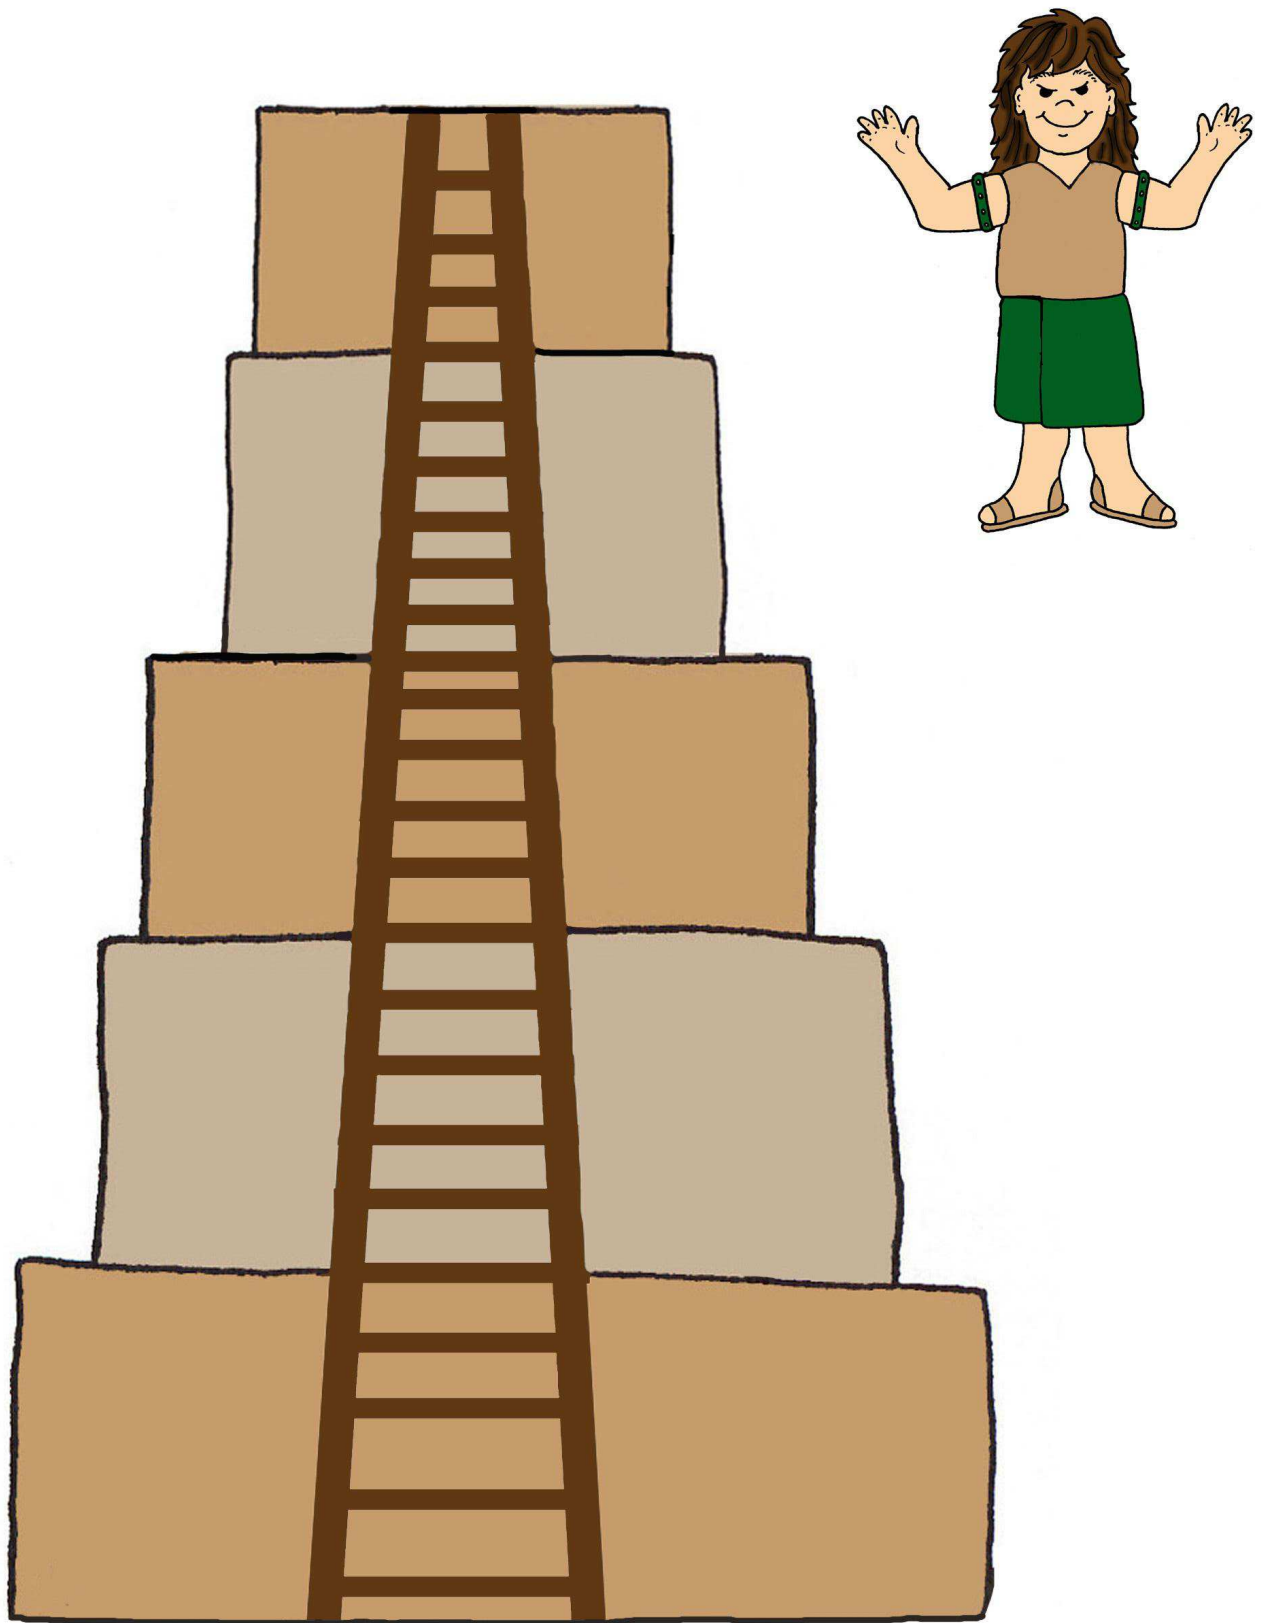

The Nephites had a chief judge named Alma. He was a wonderful man. Alma was worried about some of the members of the church, and he was afraid that these people had forgotten Heavenly Father. Alma feared they would join the Lamanites.

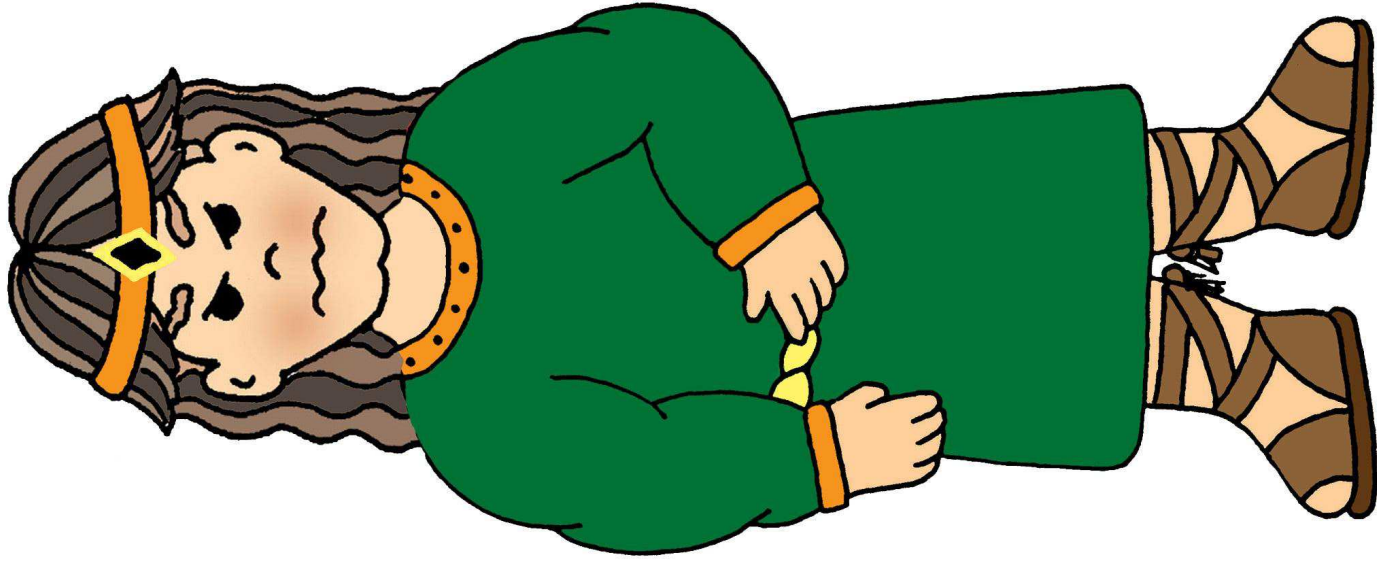

Alma decided to take Amulek and other good, strong men with him to teach the Zoramites. The Zoramites had forgotten how to pray. The leader of the Zoramites was named Zoram. He was a wicked man who led his people to worship idols. They would meet once a week and say boastful prayers. They built synagogues and in the middle of the synagogue they would place a stand called a rameumptom. A rameumptom is another word for a “holy stand.” They would take turns climbing up onto the platform and saying the same loud prayer. They said there would be no Christ. They would raise their hands high above their heads and pray so everyone could see and hear them. After everyone had taken a turn, they would leave the synagogue and not think of Heavenly Father again until the following week.

Alma and Amulek taught the people how to pray reverently. They taught them that they could pray anywhere and at any time. They taught that we should thank Heavenly Father for the things He has given us and that we should ask for things we need. They also taught them to pray continually in their homes, their fields and when they were alone.

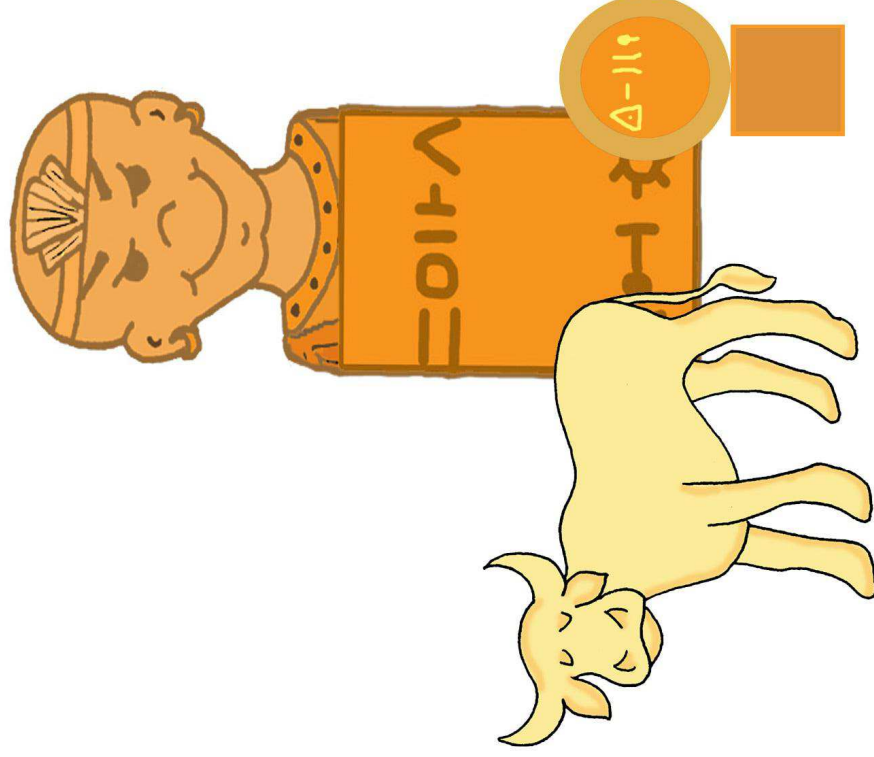

We too can learn from Alma and Amulek. We are blessed to be able to speak to Heavenly Father all of the time. We need to remember to pray reverently, and often. (See Alma Chapter 31)
